

Seniors Housing Program

Applying for Seniors Housing

Many seniors find that their housing needs change over time. Some find their income is less than in earlier years, making housing hard to afford. Others may find it difficult to maintain their own home.

In recognition of these needs, the federal and provincial governments provide funding for building and maintaining seniors housing projects.

Where Are Seniors Housing Projects Located?

There are 1,113 Seniors Housing units located in 32 communities across PEI:

Who Is Eligible?

Any person over the age of sixty can apply for Seniors Housing.

How Are Tenants Selected?

Tenants are selected based on need. A rating system is used to determine which applicants have the greatest need. When assessing need, staff consider income, assets, health, age, and present housing.

What Do Housing Units Offer?

Most housing units are one-bedroom apartments with a living room, kitchen, bathroom and storage area.

A few buildings have bachelor-style apartments. These are similar to one-bedroom apartments but they do not have a separate bedroom. There are also a limited number of two-bedroom apartments.

Some buildings have units designed for tenants with a disability.

Housing Services provides a refrigerator and stove, covers the cost of heat and ensures ongoing maintenance of the unit.

Each tenant is responsible for furnishings; the cost of electricity, telephone, television and tenant insurance; and day-to-day cleaning of the unit.

New tenants must make arrangements with the electric utility to have electricity turned on.

What Rent Is Charged?

Rent charged varies depending on the income of the tenant. Most tenants pay 25 per cent of their income as rent.
