

Bunny Explores Spring

by MrTMiller

A Storybird
Bunny Explores Spring

by MrTMiller

Illustrated by bluedogrose

Published on April 16, 2020

© Storybird 2020 All rights reserved

It has been a long winter.

Bunny has spent a lot of time inside the house.

Now it is spring.

Spring is a great time to explore.

Bunny rushed outside, but she got a little scared.

There was a lot going on. Bunny saw the clouds moving in the sky. She felt the grass under her feet. She heard birds chirping, and she smelled the wet earth.

There were a lot of changes happening.

Bunny asked Mom if she could come outside and help explore.

Mom was busy with Baby.

Maybe Mom couldn't come outside with Bunny, but Mom helped Bunny make a plan.

Bunny's plan: go outside and find signs of spring.

First Bunny and Mom agreed on safe places to explore, and Bunny drew a map of the places she would go.

Next, Bunny packed a bag with:

- something to write on
- something to write with
- a tool for measuring
- a snack for later.

Bunny found lots signs of spring.

She smelled flowers.

She saw insects in the air, and she noticed plants starting to grow.

Bunny even felt some raindrops fall on her head!

Mom even found a way to join in!

It's true, Spring is a great time to get out and explore!

When Bunny got home from exploring, she wrote a story and drew some pictures about the signs of Spring. Exploring was a lot of fun. Writing the story was a lot of fun too. But Bunny's favorite part was sharing what she wrote.