Dear Minister MacKay:

On behalf of the Prince Edward Island Employment Standards Board, I am pleased to submit the Report of the 2019 Minimum Wage Review.

Enclosure
Re: Review of Minimum Wage Order

1. The Prince Edward Island Employment Standards Board (the Board), at its annual meeting on 24 September 2019, reviewed the Minimum Wage Order as prescribed by sections 5(1), 5(2), and 5(3) of the Prince Edward Island Employment Standards Act, as amended in 2019 (Bill No. 104).

Public Consultation

2. The Board requested, through newspaper notices and social media, public input on adjustments to the minimum wage. Responses were received from ten (10) organizations / businesses and five (5) individuals (see attached list). Six (6) of the organizations and zero (0) individuals presented oral submissions. The Board considered these views as well as considerable documentation relevant to the criteria prescribed by section 5(3) of the Act (i.e., cost of living change, economic conditions in the province, and measures of poverty).

3. The public submissions covered a number of issues.

a) Employer requests generally were that:

- no increase is needed in the minimum wage, but not all employers are opposed to a reasonable minimum wage increase;
- increasing the minimum wage exerts pressure to increase wages for other workers, too, which further increases labour costs;
- the economic conditions in Prince Edward Island have been positive and relatively stable compared to other provinces;
- government should provide as much notice as possible for future increases;
- employers appreciate the 1 April date for a once-per-year increase with considerable advance notice about the new minimum wage rate;
- if an increase is recommended, it should be based on changes to the Consumer Price Index (CPI) or some other clear index to provide predictability and transparency;
- changes in technology and automation create the possibility of replacing workers and significant increases in minimum wage could accelerate that possibility;
- minimum wage increases, particularly substantial increases, could have a negative impact on employment hours, especially for young workers;
- a lower rate of minimum wage should apply to liquor servers;
- a lower rate of minimum wage should apply to inexperienced workers or workers in training; and
- employers recognize changes to the Basic Personal Exemption amount, yet this amount should continue to be increased as this would provide more take-home pay for low income workers.
b) Employee spokespersons submitted that:

- people cannot live on pay of $12.25 per hour;
- low income workers often rely on charity and other social supports;
- more women than men earn minimum wage;
- minimum wage needs to be regularly increased until it matches a living wage (approximately $15.00 - $18.00 per hour in their view);
- when minimum wage matches a living wage, further increases should be linked to changes in the CPI or in another predictable way;
- the rental situation in the province is presenting unprecedented challenges to minimum wage earners (and others);
- the Employment Standards Act is outdated and should be revised to reflect the changing workplace.

Considerations

4. In its deliberations, the Board considered the public submissions (see above highlights) and other relevant points.

a. An amendment to the Employment Standards Act, section 5(3), requires the Board to consider measures of poverty in addition to the existing requirement to consider the cost to an employee of purchasing the necessities of life.

b. The Nova Scotia Minimum Wage Committee's November 2018 Report described that province's 2008 adoption of the Statistics Canada Low Income Cut Off (LICO) with minimum wage increases indexed to CPI, as well as their 2018 re-consideration of the number of hours constituting full-time work (1850 hours annually based on 37 hours per week for 50 weeks per year vs. their previous model of 2000 hours annually based on 40 hours per week for 50 weeks per year).

c. There is no one generally-accepted measure of poverty and the Board considered a blended approach that included both Market Basket Measures (MBM) and LICO indices.

d. The minimum wage helps protect the wages of vulnerable workers who have little or no bargaining power.

e. Positive effects of raising the minimum wage include increased consumer spending, better health outcomes and lower wage inequality, especially for women.

f. Minimum wage workers tend to spend their income locally, therefore, any increase in minimum wage is likely to benefit the local economy.
g. An increase in minimum wage may have an indirect negative impact for employees such as reduced employment or hours of work due to higher costs to employers.

h. It is generally accepted that minimum wage alone cannot eradicate poverty; other instruments are needed such as financial literacy education, access to targeted social programs, tax policy (i.e. tax rates and increased Basic Personal Exemption), etc.

i. Minimum wage continues to increase across Canada. The average rate for all provinces and territories was $12.67 in 2019 (see attached chart).

j. A number of provinces are moving towards or have already adopted a minimum wage of $15.00 per hour.

k. Various economic indices such as current CPI and forecasted CPI for 2020.

l. The Island economy has been strong over the past year and the outlook for 2020 is positive, thus, for all citizens to participate in the economic growth, the minimum wage should be increased.

m. While discussion on poverty reduction continues both nationally and provincially, the Board recognizes its limited scope with respect to alleviating poverty. However, as a Minimum Wage Board, we have a responsibility to unorganized workers in Prince Edward Island to ensure the statutory minimum wage is appropriate.

Wage Recommendations (Board Mandate, Section 5 of the Act)

1. The minimum wage be increased by $0.60 (to $12.85) on 1 April 2020; and

2. the new minimum wage rate be announced to the public as soon as possible.

The Board noted that, although there have not been any requests for an adjustment to the Board and Lodging section of the Minimum Wage Order, there have not been any changes in rates since 2009. The Board recommends the following maximum amounts that may be deducted from the wages of an employee where the employer furnishes board (effective 1 April 2020):

3. for board and lodging, $61.60 (an increase of $5.60);

4. for board only, $49.50 (an increase of $4.50);

5. for lodging only, $27.50 (an increase of $2.50);

6. for single meals, $4.13 (an increase of $0.38).
Should government accept these recommendations, an appropriate rationale should be included with any public announcement of the rate changes.

Other Recommendations

1. Conduct a comprehensive review of the Employment Standards Act;

2. Continue to explore other means to alleviate poverty and facilitate Islander's participation in the workforce (e.g., examine the feasibility of a Basic Income Guarantee, tax policy such as Basic Personal Exemption, addressing childcare expenses for low-income working parents, housing, or other social programs);

3. Educate Islanders about financial literacy (e.g., mandatory high school programs, continuing education for adults).

Respectfully submitted on behalf of the Members of the Prince Edward Island Employment Standards Board,

Wayne Vessey
Acting Chair
